In his first Ironman start outside of Hawaii, American Andy Potts also took his first Ironman title. Potts took the lead from the men's swim leader John Flanagan shortly after heading out of T1 and held his position throughout the day despite a gallant running effort by fourth-place finisher Luke Bell of Australia.

Fellow American Linsey Corbin garnered her first Ironman title as well after taking the lead over New Zealand's Gina Crawford halfway through the bike, holding it throughout the marathon and notching a new course record time of 9:17:54.
